

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to a speech enabling gateway system that can provide a speech recognition capability to signal-based adjunct processors, such as DTMF-based adjunct processors. The gateway, in one configuration, conferences two or more channels together and performs speech recognition on data streams carried by one or both of the channels. Spoken commands are mapped to appropriate signals for the signal-based adjunct processor.

5

09917576-072701